

Terms and Conditions from FACEBOOK

Facebook is one of the most used sites for communication and getting to know people. You can post photos about anything and write anything I don't know who reads terms and conditions but it's stranger than I think.

Principles ways to collect data from Facebook:

- Cookies
- Information you provide
- Social Network

One of the most used paths to collect data is tracking cookies. In this way, you are agreed that Facebook can access information about IP, your browse history, your address and so on. This makes it easier to share things you find on the internet directly to your Facebook account.

A good part of that is VPN. It's a tool that can be used for connecting to another server and encrypting data, then going on Facebook. Encryption is what stops accessing information from another external source.
